• 《中国梦 – 建设中的社会》/ the Chinese Dream
《中国梦 – 建设中的社会》是中国建筑师和中国城市化未来的大胆尝试。这个设计二十年的建造和完成将基于2008年的奥运。若在奥运项目前提（Herzog & de Meuron）在前期中看到，中国当代城市未来主义和世界竞争。到2020年在中国将建成400个新城，子城市交流网络将开，发中国由。由那时起，各个公司下个国际形象设计确心型过时个时间的城市化和时代人类的发展和国内市场成功的中心——

Dutch architect Ole Scheeren's new skyscraper for the headquarters of Chinese CCTV in Beijing will be completed in 2008 after a construction period of 5 years. Afterwards he moves to China and worked on other fresh and elegant skyscraper designs, projects to explore the hopes and hazards of dreaming on such a scale. The question is not only whether this is too much but also how to build an ecotopia. The Chinese Dream is a virtual tour de force, both stupefying in its scope and holistic in approach. Cutting across all levels of scale — from individual to nation — and fearlessly employing truly multidisciplinary teams, [sic] requiring architecture from town planning, politics, economics, arts & culture, environmental concerns, and sociology, the book's ambitions exceed both its format and its author for big questions of today, and it vanquish the paradoxes at the heart of China's struggle for change.

• 《MAD Dinner》
[ENGLISH] MAD中国著名建筑师马岩松与他的东北的东南角点——故事背景，组织团，他建筑师等的对话，马岩松说是是在由东南的营与营的基点与个基地，东南角中国的城市当代公共个空间中。

MAD Dinner spiteously concerns at the existential urban and the product or process. It questions the roots of Beijing-based architect MAD in a universal context. The book explores idealism and free market realities, the role of the media and cultural icons, resetting design to China's specific needs, and projects for environmental protection. Its journalistic approach with a series of interviews reconnects architecture to the daily cultural landscape. It not [sic] does speak to China's emerging role or the urban global architecture.
